ACA Opponents Eyeing New Challenge To Law's Maintenance-of-Effort Requirement (BNA) §

By Ralph Lindeman

A new legal challenge to state Medicaid requirements contained in the health care reform law may be in the works, according to recent BNA interviews with health law experts at conservative think tanks and in academia.

The potential target is a provision known as the maintenance-of-effort (MOE) requirement that bars states from cutting eligibility standards for Medicaid enrollees. It prohibits states from imposing more restrictive eligibility standards for any current Medicaid enrollee until at least Jan. 1, 2014, when the new state-based health insurance exchanges are supposed to be operational.

Opponents of the law are considering using the same legal theory that proved successful in persuading a majority of the U.S. Supreme Court to strike down the federal government's enforcement scheme for implementing a major expansion of Medicaid contained in the health reform law.

Maine's Republican Gov. Paul LePage already has announced he considers his state no longer bound by the MOE requirement and has threatened legal action if the Department of Health and Human Services disagrees. Other states are watching.

Recent events in Maine appear to have the potential to transform the theoretical arguments about the MOE requirement into a full-blown legal challenge.

Since the Supreme Court's ruling in June (125 HCDR, 6/29/12), HHS officials have taken the position that the court's decision affected only the Medicaid expansion provision in the Affordable Care Act and all other requirements, including the MOE mandate, remain in effect.

Legal experts who support the MOE requirement say the critics' arguments are overblown, noting that the MOE requirement is limited in time and does not impose a burden on states of the same magnitude as the Medicaid expansion.

Medicaid Expansion Now Voluntary Among States

In its June 28 decision, the Supreme Court held that HHS could not threaten states with the loss of all their Medicaid funding if they did not participate in the Medicaid expansion contained in ACA. The expansion would extend Medicaid eligibility to all uninsured adults younger than 65 with income up to 133 percent of the federal poverty level, potentially bringing as many as 16 million new enrollees into the program, if all states participated.

In an opinion written by Chief Justice John G. Roberts Jr. and joined by six other justices, the court held that HHS's authority to withhold the entire amount of a state's Medicaid funding—if it did not join the expansion—was "coercive."

The court also found that ACA's expansion of Medicaid was so substantial that it amounted to "a shift in kind, not merely in degree," and that states failed to receive adequate notice of the change.

The practical effect of the court's ruling has been to make the Medicaid expansion voluntary on the part of the states. Already, at least five state governors have announced they do not plan to join in the expansion. HHS has set no deadline for states to decide and, for now, most state officials are reviewing their options.

Two Cases Needed to Make a Doctrine

Conservative opponents of ACA—some of whom were involved in formulating the winning arguments against the Medicaid expansion—are considering using the same legal theory to challenge the law's MOE requirement.

"I think it's the next case," said James F. Blumstein, a health law expert at Vanderbilt Law School, referring to the potential MOE challenge. "It takes two cases to make a doctrine."

"The maintenance-of-effort requirement may run afoul of the clear notice rule that the [Supreme Court] established."

—James F. Blumstein, Vanderbilt Law School

Blumstein filed an amicus brief in support of the challenge to the Medicaid expansion brought by 26 states in NFIB v. Sebelius (U.S., No. 11-393, 6/28/12). Blumstein's amicus brief, which was cited by Roberts in the majority opinion, argued that the Medicaid expansion was an abuse of Congress's spending power.

In particular, Blumstein maintained that the expansion was tantamount to an illegal modification to the terms of a contract—a change that was not foreseeable by the states when they initially agreed to take part in the federal-state Medicaid program, which provides health care for the poor.

In his opinion, Roberts agreed, saying, "The legitimacy of Congress's exercise of the spending power thus rests on whether the state voluntarily and knowingly accepts the terms of the contract."

Roberts added, "A state could hardly anticipate that Congress's reservation of the right to 'alter or amend' the Medicaid program included the power to transform it so dramatically."

The Roberts opinion concluded that the major change in Medicaid brought about through the expansion was not foreseeable by the states, and HHS could not "coerce" states to participate by using the threat of withholding their existing federal Medicaid funding.

MOE Requirement Vulnerable to Challenge?

Blumstein told BNA that ACA's Medicaid MOE requirement suffers from the same lack of foreseeability. "The maintenance-of-effort requirement may run afoul of the clear notice rule that the court established," he said.

The MOE requirement in ACA provides that a state shall not have in effect eligibility standards, methodologies, or procedures under its Medicaid program "that are more restrictive than the eligibility standards, methodologies, or procedures” in effect when ACA was signed into law in March 2010.

The MOE requirement is intended to ensure that states facing budget shortfalls do not slash Medicaid coverage in advance of the expansion set to begin in 2014.

The law further requires states to comply with the MOE requirement as a condition for receiving any federal matching funds under the Medicaid program. In other words, if a state does not comply with the MOE requirement, HHS can withhold the state's existing federal Medicaid funds.

HHS Enforcement Scheme at Issue

Critics of the provision point out that this same enforcement scheme was struck down by the Supreme Court in NFIB v. Sebelius. “The amount of money HHS is threatening to withhold if the states don't maintain the effort is the same amount HHS threatened to withhold if states did not expand their Medicaid programs,” Michael Cannon, director of health policy studies at the Cato Institute, a libertarian public policy research group, told BNA.

Section 2001\(b\) of ACA further provides that the MOE requirement remains in effect until the state has a “fully operational” health insurance exchange.

States are required to establish exchanges by Jan. 1, 2014, under Section 1311 of ACA. If a state declines to establish an exchange or is not prepared to begin operation of an exchange by the deadline, Section 1321 of ACA provides that the federal government will establish and operate a “federally-facilitated exchange” in the state.

Opponents See Elements of Challenge

Critics argue that these three elements—the MOE requirement, the threat that states could lose all their federal Medicaid funds if they do not comply, and the need for states to establish a health insurance exchange in order to be relieved of the MOE mandate—constitute the same kind of “coercion” and “unforeseeable” program changes that the Supreme Court found to be problematic in NFIB v. Sebelius. “There's a possible legal challenge available,” Cannon said. “You've got a couple of prongs of the test that Chief Justice Roberts established” in NFIB v. Sebelius.

Blumstein agreed, saying, “Where the requirements are so new, so major and unforeseeable, they violate the clear notice rule.”

Echoing Blumstein, Jonathan H. Adler, a constitutional law professor at Case Western Reserve University School of Law, told BNA, “What the Supreme Court said Congress can't do is condition receipt of a state's existing Medicaid funding on a new program—which here is creation of an exchange.”

Adler, who directs the law school's Center for Business Law and Regulation, conceded the argument “is not a slam dunk.” But he added, “We think there are real problems in how the government intends to enforce this [MOE] requirement.”

Other Experts Take Opposing View

Other legal experts, who support ACA, disagree. “States raised maintenance of effort in their suit and many other aspects of the Medicaid amendments,” noted Sara Rosenbaum, a law professor and Medicaid policy expert at the George Washington University School of Public Health and Health Services. “But the only amendment that the court said was transformative enough to be considered a new program was the eligibility expansion.”

The states, in their brief, noted that the MOE requirement “locks States into their current eligibility and coverage rates,” eliminating their discretion to adjust Medicaid rates. They also complained about a lack of notice and the fact that the requirement penalizes states that voluntarily raised Medicaid coverage rates. But it was the Medicaid expansion that was the principal target of the states' attack in NFIB v. Sebelius.

Rosenbaum added, “I don't think the maintenance-of-effort provisions can in any way be seen as a new program, whether standing alone or linked to some other event.”

States raised MOE in the lawsuit and many other aspects of the Medicaid amendments, "but the only amendment that the court said was transformative enough to be considered a new program was the eligibility expansion."

—Sara Rosenbaum, GWU School of Public Health and Health Services

Agreeing with Rosenbaum, Timothy Jost, a health law expert at Washington and Lee University School of Law, Lexington, Va., told BNA, "The Supreme Court did not address it, and, as far as anyone knows, the maintenance-of-effort provision is constitutional."

He added, "A state is not being coerced as long as the federal exchange is available as a backup."

Separate Debate on Federal Exchange

It turns out, however, that the federal exchange is subject to a separate legal debate. And how that debate is resolved—most likely through a separate legal challenge—could have a real-world impact on states and the MOE requirement, experts say.

The debate concerns whether ACA permits the federal government to provide subsidies, known as "premium assistance tax credits," to people who want to purchase health coverage on the federal exchange.

Cannon, with the Cato Institute, appeared at an Aug. 2 hearing of the House Oversight Committee, arguing that ACA does not provide for tax credits on the federal exchange (149 HCDR, 8/3/12). He noted that although ACA explicitly provides for tax credits on exchanges "established by a state under Section 1311," there is no parallel language authorizing tax credits on exchanges established by the federal government under Section 1321 of ACA.

Cannon maintained that Congress intentionally omitted the availability of tax credits on the federal exchange to encourage states to establish their own exchanges where tax credits clearly are available under ACA.

Jost, who appeared at the House Oversight Committee hearing as a witness opposing Cannon's view, argued that ACA—when read in its entirety—contains a technical corrections section (Section 1563(b)) that defines a federal exchange as one "established under Section 1311" of ACA.

According to Jost, the definition at Section 1563(b) regarding the federal exchange refers back to and incorporates the definition at Section 1311 on state exchanges—with the definition operating much like a set of Russian nesting dolls. Therefore, tax credits also are authorized on the federal exchange, not just the state exchanges, Jost said.

Without engaging the argument directly, the Internal Revenue Service issued a final rule in May allowing tax credits on the federal exchange (77 Fed. Reg. 30,377, May 23, 2012).

Tax Credit Debate and MOE Requirement

How does the debate about tax credits relate to the MOE issue? ACA says that a state must adhere to the MOE requirement until HHS "determines that an exchange established by the state under Section 1311 of the Affordable Care Act is fully operational" (Section 2001(b)) (italics added).

Referring back to the tax credit argument, Cannon maintains that the ACA language—"established by the state under Section 1311"—does not include the federal exchange.

If Cannon's argument wins the day, Jost warned, a federal exchange would not be one "established by the state under section 1311." As a result, Jost said, states that do not establish their own exchanges would not have a way to get out from under the MOE requirement.

As Jost put it in his congressional testimony, "If Mr. Cannon's interpretation of [ACA] is correct, states that decide not to establish a state exchange will be barred indefinitely from changing their Medicaid eligibility requirements."

Cannon, for his part, said Congress wrote the MOE requirement—with language mirroring the tax credit provision—to encourage states to establish their own exchanges. “It bolsters our argument,” he said. “There’s no reason to think that’s not what Congress intended.”

As for whether states could be stuck with the MOE requirement if they did not create their own exchange, Cannon said the Supreme Court’s Medicaid ruling in NFIB v. Sebelius provides some reason for doubt.

“The Supreme Court said Congress can’t condition existing Medicaid funding on states joining a new program,” Cannon explained. “Here, the statute is saying you can’t get out of the MOE requirement unless you establish an exchange, which is clearly a new program. So the court may throw that out too.”

Maine Controversy May Trigger Court Challenge

Recent events in Maine appear to have the potential to transform the theoretical arguments about the MOE requirement into a full-blown legal challenge.

On Aug. 1, the Maine Department of Health and Human Services—with the support of LePage, the state’s governor, and Maine Attorney General William Schneider (R)—filed a request with the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services to amend its state plan to implement Medicaid coverage reductions approved by the Maine Legislature in June.

The cuts would eliminate coverage for 19- and 20-year-old enrollees and reduce the income limit for nonpregnant, nondisabled adults from 133 percent of the FPL to 100 percent of the FPL. In other words, Maine residents in those categories now can obtain coverage if they have income up to 133 percent of the FPL, but the cuts would mean coverage would be available only for those with income up to 100 percent of the FPL.

Before the Supreme Court’s decision on the Medicaid expansion, Maine would have had to file a more formal request with CMS for a waiver of its state plan requirements, typically a more involved and uncertain process.

But following the court’s decision, the Maine DHHS decided it had more flexibility to simply submit a state plan amendment to CMS, Adrienne Bennett, a spokeswoman for LePage, told BNA.

In announcing the state plan amendment request, Schneider said, “Both as part of the mandatory Medicaid expansion struck down by the Supreme Court and as a unilateral, retroactive condition, the maintenance of effort provision fails and cannot be enforced against Maine.”

He added, “The state plan amendment submitted today seeks only to make responsible adjustments in Maine’s Medicaid program that are completely within the state’s authority.” CMS has 90 days to respond to Maine’s state plan amendment request.

Asked what Maine would do if its request is denied, Bennett said, “We will move forward with appropriate legal redress if necessary.”

Other States Are Watching

Officials in other states are watching the events in Maine, and some appear to be contemplating similar moves to assert more state control over Medicaid requirements.

In July, Dennis G. Smith, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Health Services, said the Medicaid MOE requirement was “subject to question” in light of the Supreme Court’s decision. The same legal reasoning used by the court would give the states more flexibility to resist the MOE requirement and introduce cost-cutting measures to their Medicaid programs, Smith said, speaking at a conference, “Medicaid’s Next Frontier,” sponsored by the health care policy journal Health Affairs.

Maybe I'm wrong, but didn't Oklahoma elect a Republican as our Governor and State Superintendent last November?

I ask, because I swear the words I heard last week about Oklahoma signing up for Obama's Race to the Top grant came from Brad Henry and Sandy Garrett. Oh never mind, it was Republican Mary Fallin and Republican Janet Barresi celebrating the wonders of Race to the Top (RTTT).

And now today we hear from (surprise, surprise) Fred Morgan from the State Chamber saying that getting millions from Obama's RTTT is a good thing.

Well, Mary and Janet, let's sit down and chat for a moment. I know one of President Obama's top bundler's gave each of your campaigns thousands of dollars ($3500 to Fallin and $1000 to Barresi). And since this tried and true liberal Democrat, George Kaiser, is in deep water with the whole Solyndra boondoggle, it might make sense that you stop catering to Mr. Kaiser's wishes to IMPLEMENT BARACK OBAMA'S, LIBERAL, OVERREACHING, FEDERAL MINGLING, DUMB OUR KIDS DOWN EVEN FURTHER, EDUCATIONAL INITIATIVE!

Besides, and I know you really don't care about what us lowly Oklahoma citizens think, but a recent Sooner Poll on this issue said 2 to 1 that we would much prefer you work to find a way for Oklahomans to take care of our own early childhood education, and not have to rely on that pesky federal government plan.

I thought the people of Oklahoma made it clear with the Obamacare Health Exchange debacle that we have a simple rule about federal dollars... If it has strings attached, SEND IT BACK!

Now Mary, Janet, and Fred, this may be one time to actually LOOK and SEE what Texas has to say about RTTT. Here's Governor Perry on why Texas was the first to reject the federal dollars.

"Why should a state that has steadily improved the rigor of its own K-12 curriculum be forced to adopt national curriculum standards that have not been developed and could wind up being weaker than what we already have in place?" Gov. Rick Perry.

So basically, RTTT could possibly cost the state more than the grant we will get, the money is not guaranteed to be there so we might on the hook for even MORE, and there is no proof that RTTT actually improves the education of our children. Sounds like a winner to me!

I know Gov. Fallin and Supt. Barresi live in this State Chamber surrounded circle of yes men and women, but it's time that our elected leaders hear from the people who elected them. Please call Gov. Fallin at (405) 521-2342 and Supt. Janet Barresi at (405) 521-3301 and tell them that taking federal money for Race to the Top is a bad idea for Oklahoma and a bad idea for our children.

And be sure to call your State Representative and Senator and ask them to oppose Race to the Top as well. If it's got strings attach, then we must SEND IT BACK! (Find your legislator here)

Sincerely,

David Tackett

This is the preliminary RTTT information we got when they announced the competition. We are still awaiting further application requirements. The application deadline is expected to be mid-October.

It is a $500 million Early Learning Challenge Grant and Oklahoma could potentially compete for approximately $60 million. The grant focuses on children from birth to the age of five.

It is likely to include:

- Early learning and development standards and kindergarten entry assessment
- Enhancement of our current tiered quality rating and improvement system to improve school readiness
- Increased capacity of data collection and analysis
- Better early Childhood teacher preparation
- May include health, behavioral and family services for children from birth to five years of age.
- Will focus high quality preschool and developmentally necessary services for three and four year olds

The deputy education commissioner in TX is a long time friend of mine and said they made a decision last year not to apply for RttT knowing they had no chance to win because of politics, so didn't waste time and effort on a proposal.. Maybe in addition to ideological differences, this is also a way for TX to "save face" if rejected.

OK is in a much stronger position in this competition, but then I am a pragmatist, not an ideologist. I just want us to continue to lead in the one area of education where we have been a leader because we don't have a track record of success in other areas of public education.. We may improve the results if we find ways to provide continuous support for children in poverty. Unfortunately, Brandon doesn't seem to recognize or understand their environment.

I hope our state can move forward in demonstrating we care about those children and won't abandon our commitment to improving their future.

OK, so I am not a politician for good reason.

Dear Governer Fallin,

I have used the letter below by OK-SAFE to express my opinion and ask that you please say NO to establishing an insurance exchange in the state of Oklahoma in connection to "Obamacare".

Sincerely,

Julia Conley

Dear Governor Fallin,

Two recent newspaper articles brought to our attention that your office may be considering whether or not to establish some sort of insurance exchange in the state of Oklahoma, possibly a state-based insurance exchange or a federally-partnered insurance exchange.

OK-SAFE opposes either option.

We contend that:

- Since you campaigned in 2010 against the implementation of the PPACA ("ObamaCare") in the state of Oklahoma, and won on that platform;*
- And since an insurance exchange is the cornerstone of the PPACA, and thereby will create a system of "market-management" that is contrary to the free enterprise system;*
- And since via SQ 756 the citizens of Oklahoma made clear their opposition to PPACA with their 65% vote;*
- And since the state legislature has twice been stymied by the people in its' attempt to establish an insurance exchange;*
- And since several incumbent Republicans drew primary opponents due to the attempt to create such an exchange, causing many people to be disgusted with the Republican party;*

We therefore demand that you make the obvious happen in Oklahoma.

Specifically, we expect Oklahoma's elected officials to demonstrate true leadership and integrity by publicly announcing that there will be no health insurance exchange created/established/implemented in the state of Oklahoma. Period.

Further, we agree with Sen. Tom Coburn's contention that there should be no further expansion of Medicaid; we ask that you demonstrate fiscal responsibility by opposing such an expansion in the state of Oklahoma.

With hopes that you do the right thing...

Say No to the Obamacare Exchange!

Dear [Decision Maker],

Every state governor in the nation has by November 16, 2012 to make a decision on whether they will work to establish the health insurance exchange to comply with Obamacare. As a citizen of Oklahoma, I encourage you to say no to this mandate. If enough states opt out of the health care exchange that is the heart of ObamaCare, Congress will have no choice but to reexamine the law.

As a public official, you should stand by the people of Oklahoma. We don't need the federal government interfering with our health care decisions. Oklahoma businesses that don't offer health insurance will be fined and likely leave the state. To run the exchange, taxpayers will pay millions of dollars so insurance companies can rake in easy profits.

Obamacare is the largest expansion of government in recent history and you have the power to stop it. If not for Oklahoma residents, then for their children and grandchildren.

Sincerely,

Anna Powers

November 15, 2012

Honorable Governor Fallin,

As a small business person and productive citizen in Oklahoma, I am concerned for the looming fiscal cliff, increased taxes, and Obama care laws that will adversely affect everyone in this state of Oklahoma and the country.

Please consider standing AGAINST A STATE EXCHANGE and possibly turning over Medicaid to the federal government.

Thank you for your service to our state and working with other governors to devise an effective approach and to healthcare and response to Obamacare mandates.

Medicaid needs reforming and fraud needs to be addressed before making the productive citizens pay for more programs, more federal spending and more corruption.

Thank you, Phyllis Battle

Say No to the Obamacare Exchange!

Dear Governor Fallin,

Every state governor in the nation has by November 16, 2012 to make a decision on whether they will work to establish the health insurance exchange to comply with Obamacare. As a citizen of Oklahoma, I encourage you to say no to this mandate. If enough states opt out of the health care exchange that is the heart of ObamaCare, Congress will have no choice but to reexamine the law.

As a public official, you should stand by the people of Oklahoma. We don't need the federal government interfering with our health care decisions. Oklahoma businesses that don't offer health insurance will be fined and likely leave the state. To run the exchange, taxpayers will pay millions of dollars so insurance companies can rake in easy profits.

Obamacare is the largest expansion of government in recent history and you have the power to stop it. If not for Oklahoma residents, then for their children and grandchildren.

Sincerely,
Peggy Martin

You know what the funny thing is? Sen. Gary Stanislawski and Rep. Glen Mulready, the two chairmen of the Health Exchange Task force, said that we HAVE to implement Health Exchanges in order to comply with Obamacare. HOWEVER, these legislators ARE ON RECORD saying that this bill isn't enough to even comply with the PPACA. Read the story here.

SO WHY ARE WE EVEN HEARING THIS BILL?

The simple point is this. The State Chamber WANTS Obamacare Health Exchanges DESPITE the wishes of the people of Oklahoma.

You know what? The State Chamber doesn't re-elect the State Senators...the people of Oklahoma re-elect them.

And if ANY Senator votes for SB 1629, the voters in their district WILL know that they voted for Obamacare. (And these GOP Senators wonder why they are drawing primary opponents against them!)

Greetings Governors, of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Alaska, Kansas, Nebraska, Arizona, Utah, NewMexico, Mississippi, Kentucky, Arkansas, Missouri, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Tennessee, Alabama.

The recent election has confirmed that the country is very, very divided along ideological lines. On one hand there is Unearned Entitlement, increasing taxation, increasing government growth & intrusion in our lives. On the other hand, there are those of us that adhere to the concept of fiscal and personal responsibility.

Washington will not change! Right now, as in now!! We cannot afford the UN, foreign wars labeled Nation Building, The Department of State giving out huge amounts of Foreign Aid, the IRS (and its thousands of agents increase dictated by Obamacare!), the bullshit EPA, the Forest Circus, and all the people on eternal welfare and foodstamps who predominantly reside on the East and Left Coasts. To prevent a collapse of the USD, the Federal Budget must be BALANCED next year, not sometime in the imaginary future (and that we know is just not going to happen). Lots of talk and expenditure but no results, Congress and Senate should have all pay suspended until they do their jobs. "If you do not do your homework, you go to bed without supper."

We must Secede from the Union.

What should be The Nation of Middle America has an abundance of wealth in the forms of Minerals, Livestock, Agriculture, Energy, and most importantly strong honest people with a work ethic. The question is How do we get the issue of Secession to the State Houses and onto a Referendum Ballot to the people as quickly as possible. Help me out here, this needs to be done while there is something left to save of what was once a great Country.

Gary Johnson should lead us, he did very well as Governor of New Mexico, yes balanced budgets.

I think best explains what Rep. Mulready, Sen. Gary Stanislawski, Sen. Brian Crain, Sen. Dan Newberry, and the rest of the GOP Senators said in their support for Obamacare of passing SB 1629...

Once upon a time there was a decree from the evil King Obama who said, "Everyone must now live in a prison cell and we want the states to build this prison or I'll send in my evil goons to build it for you. Oh yeah and here's $54.6 million to help you build your prison."

The people of Oklahoma told their local leaders, "Don't build the prison! We don't want to live in a prison cell."

But then Glen Mulready and Gary Stanislawski replied back, "But if we don't build the prison ourselves, then the evil King Obama will come build it for you. And at least this way, our friends in the State Chamber and Blue Cross Blue Shield get to make some money off of the construction of the prison."

But the people of Oklahoma convinced the other state leaders to reject the money and NOT build the prisons. So then Mr. Mulready and Mr. Stanislawski then decided to have a task force to look into the prison building issue.

1 year later, Mr. Mulready and Mr. Stanislawski came back and said, "OK, I think we found a solution. We're not going to build a prison, but we're going to build a hotel."

The people asked, "Is there a wall around this 'hotel' with barbed wire?"

"Well yes" replied the legislators.

"Are there bars on the windows?"

"Of course"

“Do the doors have bars and locks?”

“Well, yes, but we give you the key, so you can leave anytime you want. That way, King Obama is happy that we built a prison, err hotel, but it really isn't a prison. And we're going to fight this law to make sure you don't have to live in a prison.”

“So what happens if you lose, and the law to make us all live in a prison stands?”

“We'll take away your keys. But don't worry, the State Chamber and Blue Cross Blue Shield will still make money off of building these prisons and you should at least be happy for that.”

And then Mr. Mulready and Mr Stanislawski continued, “and if you're against us building this prison, then you are in favor of King Obama.”

I know this may have been a silly way of explaining what was said yesterday, but this was the logic that Sen. Stanislawski, Sen. Crain, Sen. Newberry, and the rest of the GOP senators used in explaining their support for SB 1629.

Our legislators just don't get that there is a third option. We will stand up and stop ANY implementation of Obamacare, the feds can't just jump in and make it happen. They NEED the states to do their dirty work.

If they build the infrastructure, all the federal government has to do is come and take the proverbial keys and turn our “voluntary exchange” into a mandatory program.

But now the fight has moved on to the full State Senate. So I'm telling you of the 47 Senators to stop laying the groundwork for Obamacare and vote NO on SB 1629!

September 2011

RECEIVED

SEP 19 2011

OFFICE OF THE
GOVERNOR

My Name is Carmen Brown.
I am a Dialysis patient.
My Husband's Name is Cornell Brown.
Our letter is to ask you how we as citizens can help change the standard limits for being able to qualify for Sooner Care
Medicaid for not only elderly people like us but others that need
it. We once had Sooner Care
Medicaid but lost it because of our income. Below I will try to show what happened!

Carmen's disability	→	747.00
Cornell VA Pension	→	515.00
TOTAL mon.		1262.00
Sooner Care monies	} /	1226.00
We can not exceed		36.00 → we're over

Now because of us losing Sooner
Care Medicaid I had to purchase a supplement insurance to pay the 20%
Medicare does not cover for my dialysis treatment → 400.00 mon.
Plus a RX Plan D formula 888 mon
Out of pocket → 408.88

Then I lost my travel assistance

WHICH CAME IN HANDY FOR GAS EXPENSES.
TO TRAVEL BACK & FORTH TO CLAREMORE FOR MY TREATMENTS. IT SURELY DID HELP.
THAT HELP TOTALLED ABOUT $200.00 MO.

ANYWAY I JUST WANT HELP IN
HOW WE CAN CHANGE THE GUIDELINES FOR SOONER CARE MEDICAID.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR RESPONSE.

SINCERLY

515.00 VA
767.00 SS Disa.

1282.00 → WE BRING IN
1224.00 → SOONER CARE GUIDELINES
58.00 → WE OVER EXCEED

Supplement - 400.00 mo
RX PLAN D - 8.88 mo
GAS EXPENSE - 200.00 mo

608.88

} WHAT MEDICAID
HELPED ME
WITH WHEN I
QUALIFIED

WE LIVE ON BALANCE. 674.00 MO
NOT WHINING OR COMPLAINING
JUST WANT CHANGE.

Like most conservative Republicans I was happy when you were elected to be our Governor. I remember you sitting outside a window sill holding "Don't tread on me" flag, while obamacare was being passed. Now I have to tell you that after hearing you were all in favor of spying on Oklahomans using unConstitutional surveillance with drones. That does not hold with conservatives view of less government intrusion on our daily lives. Don't know who will run against you. But Jebby Bush is what the Republicans want, and people like you. Made me change my voting card I am now a proud independent.

Do you require a reply from the governor's office?

Governor Fallin,

Shame on you for accepting the ObamaCare $54 million from the Federal Government. Evidentially, your word is not any good. You've stabbed Oklahomans in the back. I am ashamed that you are a republican. We have to stop ObamaCare, and accepting money from it only supports it. How could you do that? It is no different than knowing that someone stole something and you buy from them knowing it was stolen. Why don't you just sell your sole to the devil while you are at it? There isn't any difference.

Governor Fallin,

Shame on you for accepting the ObamaCare $54 million from the Federal Government. Evidentially, your word is not any good. You've stabbed Oklahomans in the back. I am ashamed that you are a republican. We have to stop ObamaCare, and accepting money from it only supports it. How could you do that? It is no different than knowing that someone stole something and you buy from them knowing it was stolen. Why don't you just sell your sole to the devil while you are at it? There isn't any difference. I AM SO SORRY I VOTED FOR YOU. AT LEAST JARI ASKINS WAS UP FRONT ABOUT HER INTENTIONS.

Subject: Should Congress Mandate Insurance, or Broccoli?
Date: Wednesday, March 28, 2012 3:51:38 PM

Mary,

Dealing with health insurance is a real hassle. I am lucky my wife is the one in our house who gets on the phone to fight with them when something is billed incorrectly. We use an HSA, and I am glad to have some control over what health care insurance options I have. So I am not excited about the individual mandate in Obamacare that the Supreme Court is reviewing this week.

And I am obviously not alone. A new Reason-Rupe poll of 1,200 adults finds 62% of Americans believe it is unconstitutional for Congress to mandate the purchase of health insurance, while 30% think requiring health insurance is constitutional. We will soon find out if the Supreme Court Justices agree.

One of the arguments used in the case is that if Congress has the power to require individuals to buy health care insurance, it may also mandate that Americans buy broccoli. The poll finds 87% of Americans believe Congress does not have the power to require the purchase of broccoli, while 8% say Congress can force you to buy vegetables.

Some other nuggets from the poll (see all the poll results here):

- 54% think the health care law will result in the rationing of health care services.
- Half have an unfavorable view of the health care law, while 32% have a favorable view of it.
- 49% say the law should be repealed and 36% would let it stand.
- 23% trust the government to address their health care needs, while 50% trust health insurance companies and 84% trust their doctors.

Some reforms the poll finds that the American public would support:

- Over two-thirds, 69 percent, would like to be able to shop for health insurance in the same way they shop for auto insurance.
- 48 percent of Americans would prefer to receive the money their employers spend on health care as part of their paycheck and then shop for their own health care plans. 41% would like to continue to get insurance through their employer.
- If they were allowed to shop for health care plans across state lines, 43 percent of Americans say insurance premiums would go down and 23 percent believe they'd go up.

Interestingly, 67% of Americans say that public sector workers have better health care benefits than private sector workers, 22% say the benefits are about the same, and 4% say private sector workers get better benefits than government workers.

All of this suggests that Congress should go back to the drawing board on health care reform. They will have little choice if the Supreme Court rules against the individual mandate at the heart of Obamacare. Of course, the Supreme Court's decision does not rest on what the public wants, but on the Constitution. Reason is one party in a "friend of the Court" brief that is part of the case, which lays out the earlier court decisions relating to the power of Congress to mandate something like health insurance. You can see the Brief here.

Governor Fallin,

I ask that you please continue to stand against creating a state healthcare exchange. We do not need the Federal intrusion into these areas.

If the Federal Government does set up their own plan then I would also ask you to consider turning Medicaid over to the Federal Government. This would free up some tax dollars in the state to help businesses that will be affected by the new healthcare laws.

Please consider making Oklahoma the leader against this Federal Government in areas they should not be.

Respectfully,

Jennifer Filippone

This is to inform you that I am perfectly happy with my Health Care Insurance as it is. Therefore, I do not think that the Affordable Care Act (often referred to as Obamacare) can improve my access to health care. I urge you to not establish a State insurance exchange as directed in the Act and to avoid in any manner possible implementing this act in Oklahoma. Dear Governor Fallin,

I wanted you to see this article. This means you can tell the federal gov to pound salt concerning their demands that are unConstitutional and not in the best interest of our state.

Brian & Karen Railey

States Nullification Can Stop Unconstitutional Federal Laws

How many of you are familiar with the term 'state nullification'?

Basically, state nullification is the power of the states to refuse to enact any federal law that is unconstitutional.

It is based upon the facts that the states existed prior to the Union, the people and not the government is sovereign. Since the people are the ones that are sovereign, they hold the power to restrain the federal government when it is determined that the federal government's actions are dubious or unconstitutional.

The last paragraph of the Declaration of Independence states,

"We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor."

Please take note of the bolded line and the power it gives the states.

In 1791, Congress ratified the adopted the Bill of Rights which contained the first ten amendments to the US Constitution. The Tenth Amendment reads,

“The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.”

Thomas Jefferson first wrote about state nullification when he drafted the Kentucky Resolutions of 1798 and 1799. He wrote that nullification is the rightful remedy to be used when the federal government exceeds its constitutional powers. James Madison also wrote about state nullification when he drafted the Virginia Resolutions of 1798. Madison went a step further when he stated that states are duty bound to nullify or resist the federal government when they act in violation of the US Constitution.

Jefferson warned the American people about letting the federal government assume more power than they are entitled to. He said that if the federal government is kept in check that it will continue to create new powers and grow out of control.

Therefore there are two things that we the people can do to try to keep the federal government from exercising unjust and unconstitutional policies and laws. First we need to exercise our duty and obligation to vote for people who support states' rights over the federal government. Secondly, we need to be actively involved in pushing our state leaders to exercise the state's right of nullification on matters such as the Affordable Care Act (Obamacare) and all other illegal and unconstitutional laws they have shoved down the throats of we the sovereign people.

If the governor and political leaders of your state refuse to use state nullification, like the governor in our state, Steve Beshear (D) of Kentucky, then get involved in recalling them or helping to elect one that does believe in using this power. State nullification can be and is a powerful tool that the federal government does not want you to know about. Please pass the word to others and ask them to pass it on and on and on until every American is pushing for their state to use its power of nullification.

Dear Governor Fallin,

After the disappointing Supreme Court ruling on June 28th, I am writing today to urge you to stand in opposition to the government overhaul of health care and to block the creation of a state-run health insurance exchange.

The exchanges mandated by the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act are expensive, complex and intrusive. In order to meet proper guidelines, an exchange will have to comply with over 600 pages of federal regulations, which would only result in higher premiums, more paperwork, and wasted taxpayer money. Further, the exchanges will become vehicles for a variety of new fines and penalties on employers. If an employee receives federal "premium assistance" and chooses to get their insurance through a health exchange instead of through their employer, that employer can be fined up to $3,000 for each employee in his company. For small businesses and individuals in our state, these fines and penalties would be disastrous.

When a state declines to set up an exchange, the federal government then steps in to create their own exchange. However, the federal government has no authority to collect fines or penalties on employers as they would through a state-run exchange. The statute only penalizes employers when their employees receive federal premium assistance, which is only awarded to citizens of states with state-run, not federal-run, exchanges.

Though the IRS "clarified" this statute, their regulation was a severe overreach of authority, and will not stand up in court. By refusing to establish an exchange, you will be effectively preventing ObamaCare implementation in our state.

I urge you not to waste our state's already scarce resources to create an ObamaCare exchange. The idea of a market where individuals can compare competing health plans is not in itself a bad idea, but a government run market would only serve to drive up prices and drive down freedom. If something works, we can be sure the free market can and will create it more efficiently than the government.

In order to encourage growth in both our state and the country, you should reject a state government-sponsored health exchange. Join the fight against this government takeover of health care and issue an executive order against health insurance exchanges today.

Thank you,

Dear Governor Fallin,

I urge you to ignore the bloviating in today's The Oklahoman concerning the establishment of state run healthcare exchanges. Once again the faux "conservative" paper is catering to the socialistic agenda of the imposter in the Oval Office. It is bad enough that the Republican party has once again failed to protect the People of Oklahoma from the ravages of this usurper by our Legislature's failure to pass the "candidate eligibility requirement" to appear on our ballots in the past couple of sessions; but the party also ran an establishment moderate candidate with little hope of beating Obama's all out attempts to steal the election and did so with NO "Plan B".

Therefore, as you seem unwilling to defend our Constitution against the ongoing attack by this ANTI-American Marxist who insists that his "most transparent" regime remain totally opaque prior to 2008 and will only furnish bogus documentation under extreme duress, I ask that you refrain from compounding the damage to the Oklahoma people by knuckling under to the demands of this spurious regime that Oklahoma cave in to the obscene "Obamacare" demands! The People and the Legislature said, "NO!", to these healthcare exchanges. Let's leave it that way! Remember, our Legislature notwithstanding, the People of Oklahoma resoundingly REJECTED Obama/Soetoro and his policies on November 6th -- AGAIN!

Thank you.

The Honorable Mary Fallin,

I thought I was writing to you, but obviously it was your campaign headquarters.

Thank you for the accomplishments you have made since you have been our Governor. I was pleased when I heard you reviewed the probations that Governor Henry hastily approved before leaving office. I appreciate you standing up for Oklahomans by not covering to President Obama's "Obamacare". It never made sense to me to force uninsured to purchase US Government healthcare. I know and have discussed socialism healthcare with Canadians and the English and the saying, "You get what you pay for" is worse than people understand.

I have written emails to Pres. Obama and questioned what happened to, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country." I have never had a response.

I have two questions:

1. Why are we lowering our OK state taxes to attract businesses to OK when our taxes are already low & we are considered one of the best states to live in for COL.? However, we are one of the worst 48/49 it varies for education? It was not your problem initially & I know you don't control budget, but my understanding is you do want to decrease our taxes. Sure I would love to have lower taxes, but not at the cost of our kids. I don't have any children in school, nor do our kids or grandchildren live in this state. My opinion is we (voters - not our family, but we as a state) counted our chickens before they hatched when the lottery was approved; our budget should not have changed to include a possible influx of funds from the lottery; for like other states the lottery has not met the goals it promised. Once again our schools are asked to cut what is vital & a promise is broken again about educators receiving their bonus after this year for their national accreditation (no we have no teachers or instructors in our family in this state either.)

2. My brother, David Wayne Teal, No. CF-2009-5105 was given probation (probably by Gov Henry @the end of his term) while waiting to be tried for manufacturing meth in our Mother's home. How can he receive probation when he broke it? I don't understand. I also don't understand why his sentence is concurrent instead of consecutive. I was told it was not necessary to attend the sentencing, but I would have protested (if it's allowed) such short sentence when this is his 21st drug related conviction.

Thank you for all you do and God bless you in all your endeavors.

As a concerned American citizen, I am writing to respectfully demand that you move to immediately refuse to set up Obamacare "insurance exchanges" & reject the massive & unsustainable expansion of Medicaid.

States Don't Have To Implement Obamacare! That's the secret about Obamacare that the administration & liberal pundits in the mainstream media don't want you to know. The states are under no obligation whatsoever to create Obamacare exchanges or to expand their Medicaid rolls to unsustainable levels.

More than a dozen states (Alabama, Arizona, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, MISSOURI, Montana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Utah, & Virginia) already have made it illegal for state employees to implement Obamacare's individual or employer mandates.

Obamacare is bad policy that is already driving up the cost of health care in our great country, adding to our mounting & unsustainable debt, & stripping the ability of Americans to make our own health care choices. It is now up to the States to STOP Obamacare once & for all.

In a matter of hours & days following the re-election of Barack Obama, dozens of U.S. companies announced plans to lay off thousands of workers. So far, more than 30 companies (& counting) – both large & small – have announced layoffs. The reason: The high costs of complying with Obamacare.

No more excuses. The time for action is now! I respectfully demand that you move to immediately refuse to set up Obamacare "insurance exchanges."

STATES RESIST & REFUSE OBAMACARE

Friends, as we wait to see if Congress will actually obey the Will of the People, there is another way to keep the hounds of ObamaCare from our doorstep - compel our Governors to enforce the 10th Amendment and refuse to implement the wallet busting, freedom killing socialized medicine program known as ObamaCare.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM OBAMACARE - TELL YOUR STATE TO RESIST & REFUSE! - FAX YOUR STATE NOW!

In the wake of the devastating SCOTUS ObamaCare ruling, several states are taking a stand and refusing to implement Obama's socialized medicine scheme. Governors like Florida's Rick Scott, Wisconsin's Scott Walker and Texas' Rick Perry have drawn a line in the sand and told the Federal government "thou shall not pass"!

This week, Texas Governor Rick Perry issued a scathing letter to HHS Secretary Kathleen Sebelius informing her and the entire administration that TEXAS WILL NOT COMPLY:
The Honorable Kathleen Sebelius

Secretary
U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Dear Secretary Sebelius :

In the ObamaCare plan, the federal government sought to force the states to expand their Medicaid programs by * in the words of the Supreme Court - putting a gun to their heads. Now that the "gun to the head" has been removed, please relay this message to the President: I oppose both the expansion of Medicaid as provided in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act and the creation of a so-called "state" insurance exchange, because both represent into the sovereignty of our state.

TELL THE STATES - DO NOT COMPLY - NO OBAMACARE - FAX NOW!

I stand proudly with the growing chorus of governors who reject the PPACA power grab. Thank God and our nation's founders that we have the right to do so.

Neither a "state" exchange nor the expansion of Medicaid under the Orwellian-named PPACA would result in better "patient protection" or in more "affordable care." What they would do is make Texas a mere appendage of the federal government when it comes to health care.

The PPACA does not truly allow states to create and operate their own exchanges. Instead, it gives the federal government the final say as to which insurance plans can operate in a so-called "state" exchange, what benefits those plans must provide, and what price controls and cost limits will apply. It leaves many questions to be answered later through federal "future rulemaking."

TELL THE STATES - DO NOT COMPLY - NO OBAMACARE - FAX NOW!

In short, it essentially treats the states like subcontractors through which the federal government can control the insurance markets and pursue federal priorities rather than those of the individual states.

Through its proposed expansion of Medicaid, the PPACA would simply enlarge a broken system that is already financially unsustainable. Medicaid is a system of inflexible mandates, one-size-fits- all requirements, and wasteful, bureaucratic inefficiencies. Expanding it as the PPACA provides would only exacerbate the failure of the current system, and would threaten even Texas with financial ruin.

I look forward to implementing health care solutions that are right for the people of Texas. I urge you to support me in that effort. In the meantime, the PPACA's unsound encroachments will find no foothold here.

Sincerely,
Rick Perry

States to Stop ObamaCare

STATES RESIST & REFUSE OBAMACARE

Friends, as we wait to see if Congress will actually obey the Will of the People, there is another way to keep the hounds of ObamaCare from our doorstep - compel our Governors to enforce the 10th Amendment and refuse to implement the wallet busting, freedom killing socialized medicine program known as ObamaCare.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM OBAMACARE - TELL YOUR STATE TO RESIST & REFUSE! - FAX YOUR STATE NOW!

In the wake of the devastating SCOTUS ObamaCare ruling, several states are taking a stand and refusing to implement Obama's socialized medicine scheme. Governors like Florida's Rick Scott, Wisconsin's Scott Walker and Texas' Rick Perry have drawn a line in the sand and told the Federal government "thou shall not pass"!

This week, Texas Governor Rick Perry issued a scathing letter to HHS Secretary Kathleen Sebelius informing her and the entire administration that TEXAS WILL NOT COMPLY:

The Honorable Kathleen Sebelius
Secretary

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services
200 Independence Avenue, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20201

Dear Secretary Sebelius :

In the ObamaCare plan, the federal government sought to force the states to expand their Medicaid programs by * in the words of the Supreme Court - putting a gun to their heads. Now that the "gun to the head" has been removed, please relay this message to the President: I oppose both the expansion of Medicaid as provided in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act and the creation of a so-called "state" insurance exchange, because both represent into the sovereignty of our state.

TELL THE STATES - DO NOT COMPLY - NO OBAMACARE - FAX NOW!

I stand proudly with the growing chorus of governors who reject the PPACA power grab. Thank God and our nation's founders that we have the right to do so. Neither a "state" exchange nor the expansion of Medicaid under the Orwellian-named PPACA would result in better "patient protection" or in more "affordable care." What they would do is make Texas a mere appendage of the federal government when it comes to health care. The PPACA does not truly allow states to create and operate their own exchanges. Instead, it gives the federal government the final say as to which insurance plans can operate in a so-called "state" exchange, what benefits those plans must provide, and what price controls and cost limits will apply. It leaves many questions to be answered later through federal "future rulemaking."

TELL THE STATES - DO NOT COMPLY - NO OBAMACARE - FAX NOW!

In short, it essentially treats the states like subcontractors through which the federal government can control the insurance markets and pursue federal priorities rather than those of the individual states.

Through its proposed expansion of Medicaid, the PPACA would simply enlarge a broken system that is already financially unsustainable. Medicaid is a system of inflexible mandates, one-size-fits-all requirements, and wasteful, bureaucratic inefficiencies. Expanding it as the PPACA provides would only exacerbate the failure of the current system, and would threaten even Texas with financial ruin.

I look forward to implementing health care solutions that are right for the people of Texas. I urge you to support me in that effort. In the meantime, the PPACA's unsound encroachments will find no foothold here.

Sincerely,
Rick Perry
Governor

We need to compel each and every state to resist and refuse Obama's medical schemes. It may be the only way we escape the final destruction of our rights.

Governor Fallin,

This weekend at the south steps of the capitol we the people had a healthcare rally to stop the implementation of what we all call, "Obamacare." Sorry you had to miss it. We do not want any exchanges set up what so ever!

1. We do not want a huge increase in Medicaid expansion as Governor Scott of Florida has stated. This will be the same problem right here in Oklahoma. Many other governrnors are refusing. Will you join them?
2. You sent back the $50 million to start setting up the exchanges, don't cave in now!
3. Please terminate as soon as possible the OHIET Oklahoma Health Informtation Exchange Trust.
4. Both Senator Coburn and Representative Lankford have signed a letter dedicated to full repeal of government takeover of healthcare and they ask you and all other governors to join us to oppose its implementation.
5. The Heritage Foundation has estimated the tax increase will cost all Oklahomans an average of $2501-$3000 dollars. How about some free market competition to drive the cost down?

I could go on and on but you get my point. I and everyone I know don't want anymore government FORCED upon us. This will be a fiasco at best.

I ask for a response and pray it is positive for all Oklahomans.

Sincerely,

David Brooke

Governor Fallin:

I am writing to ask you to support the expansion of Medicaid for low-income, uninsured Oklahomans. We could provide health coverage for tens of thousands in our state and also improve our state's workforce.

As the federal government will pick up the cost of this expansion for the first three years and 90% of the cost after 2020, it seems to make sense to keep our citizens and especially our children healthy.

Now that the Supreme Court has ruled and the presidential election results are in, it is clear that the health care law is here to stay. Let's not continue the fight--let's make good choices for our citizens.

I urge you to make the responsible choice for Oklahoma and allow our state to join Medicaid.

Thank you for your consideration.

Subject: TEA Parties & Judicial Watch Being Set Up for Blame? - Who Is Behind the "US Day of Rage" on 9/17/11
Date: Monday, August 22, 2011 3:06:27 PM

Guys,

Sept 17th is the day stock markets around the world will crash and Obama and the democrat party, aided by the media will blame the "tea party". They are already in attack mode with intentional tactics vilifying the movement. Today vile socialist mouthpiece, Maxine Waters stated, "The tea party can go straight to hell!" and FOX contributor's Bob Beckel is ramping up his hate-filled rhetoric calling us "teabaggers" and leading the 'blame game' against constitutional conservatives - their targets have a name—TEA PARTIES.

You will recall that recently a "leader" of Judicial Watch sent email requests for a "peaceful" rally at D.C. capitol and state capitols. Why would Judicial Watch support a rally on the same day that Marxists/agitators with ACORN and Unions plan a Bill Ayers-esque "Day of Rage" targeting capitalism? Or maybe they didn't. Maybe Obama plans to pin the damage on Judicial Watch for their recent victories: August 16 - Judicial Watch Sues National Labor Relations Board for Documents Concerning Boeing Lawsuit; August 17 - Judicial Watch Victory: Court Slaps Down Obama Administration Secrecy, Rules White House Visitor Logs Subject to FOIA; August 18 - Judicial Watch Uncovers New Documents: Obama Administration Bankrolls Massive Internet Propaganda Campaign to Push Obamacare.

Obama is running scared. Proof of forgery, identity fraud and criminal conspiracy is catching up to him. What is really going on with his Martha's Vineyard "vacation"? - Working on a jobs plan or facilitating chaos?

Sept. 17 - Don't be a fool! Stay home and keep your powder dry.

The Patriots

A message to all members of The Patriots

the Blaze

What, exactly, is a "US Day of Rage?" Well, on September 17th we may find out for certain, but until then, The Blaze is revealing what information does exist about this very nefarious-sounding campaign.

A US Day of Rage is the title given to a day of ostensibly "non-violent" civil disobedience orchestrated by a group of radicals — that reportedly include SEIU's Stephen Lerner and ACORN founder Wade Rathke (who, coincidentally, formerly served as president of SEIU's local New Orleans branch) — targeting Wall Street and U.S. capitalism. It's worth noting that the title of the movement — if its intentions are indeed non-violent in nature — appears to contradict itself slightly.

But what is perhaps even more interesting than its title is who is allegedly behind the movement. You may recall that back in March The Blaze exposed Lerner for stating his aspirations to destroy JP Morgan Chase and cause the collapse of the entire stock market.

Now, the US Day of Rage protests, staged by a collective of activist groups allegedly in conjunction with Lerner and Rathke, are planning the actual “occupation” of Wall Street September 17, complete with a tent city set smack-dab in the middle of Manhattan’s financial district. Similar protests are purportedly set to take place across the nation — and even world — at the same time. Some Day of Rage organizers are even calling on activists to squat in Manhattan’s financial district for months at a time.

The Blaze’s report on Lerner, who serves on SEIU’s International Executive Board, caught the union agitator stating:

So, a bunch of us around the country are thinking about who would be a really good company to hate? We decided that would be JP Morgan Chase. .... And so we’re going to roll out over the next couple of months what will hopefully be an exciting campaign about JP Morgan Chase that is really about challenge the power of Wall Street. And so what we’re looking at is in the first week of May, we get enough people together – we’re starting now – to really have a week of action in New York with the goal of ... I don’t want to go into any details because I don’t know which police agents are in the room, but the goal would be that we would roll out in New York the first week in May.

Then, like clockwork, some 400 activists brought Lerner’s dream to fruition and converged on JP Morgan Chase’s annual shareholders’ meeting in May — this time in Columbus, Ohio rather than New York. The group that staged this particular protest, the National People’s Action, reportedly confirmed it was there as part of its “Showdown in America” campaign against the big banks. Since the location of JP Morgan Chase’s meeting was surrounded by a moat, the activists, who likened themselves to Robin Hood, even brought a collapsible bridge to “storm the castle.”

It is also perhaps worth noting that in March, The Blaze reported Rathke and Lerner called for “days of rage in ten cities around JP Morgan Chase.” Rathke mentioned some of Lerner’s key assertions:

While labeling Lerner an ex-SEIU official who was signaling that unions and community organizations were “dead,” also reported hook-line-and-sinker that in May, according to Lerner, there would be days of rage in ten cities around JP Morgan Chase signally the beginning of the anti-banking jihad.

So it might add up now that Klein Online reported Rathke’s efforts are being organized by Lerner, who, as part of his planned protests, called for “a week of civil disobedience, direct action all over the city:”

The planned Sept. 17 day of rage seems to be the culmination of Rathke’s efforts.

Those efforts are being organized by Stephen Lerner, an SEIU board member who reportedly visited the Obama White House at least four times.

The aim, according to Lerner, is to “destabilize the folks that are in power and start to rebuild a movement.”

But the Days of Rage campaign might go even further than originally thought. While one US Day of Rage website is somewhat vague about its slated activities, other Days of Rage organizers are quite bold in revealing their intentions to occupy Wall Street September 17 and remain there for literally months, in a kind of “US Tahrir Square.” AdBusters published a statement by a group dubbed “Culture Jammers” that states:

“How do we bring down the stock market? How do we bring down their bonuses? How do we interfere with their ability to, to be rich?” Lerner asked rhetorically in March.

On September 17, we want to see 20,000 people flood into lower Manhattan, set up tents, kitchens, peaceful barricades and occupy Wall Street for a few months. Once there, we shall incessantly repeat our one simple demand until Barack Obama capitulates.

...there is a very real danger that if we naively put our cards on the table and rally around the “overthrow of capitalism” or some equally outworn utopian slogan, then our Tahrir moment will quickly fizzle into another inconsequential ultra-lefty spectacle soon forgotten. But if we have the cunning to come up with a deceptively simple Trojan Horse demand ...

Not to mention the myriad coordinated Days of Rage AdBusters reveals are set to roll out at other stock exchanges worldwide:

Inspired by the visceral potential of the Wall Street occupation, the Indignados of Spain just sent us word that on September 17th they too will set up camp outside the Madrid Stock Exchange.

The surprise announcement, that their #TOMALABOLSA will join your #OCCUPYWALLSTREET, may embolden other cities as well. A rumor suggests the financial district of Paris may be next ... or will it be Toronto’s Bay Street, Sydney’s Martin Place, or some yet to be chosen site in London?

Then on October 6th another kind of encampment begins in Washington, DC.

With a bit of luck, and the right mix of nonviolence and tenacity, S17 just might cascade into a Tahrir Moment on an international scale – wouldn’t that be something?

We call on jammers across the world to occupy financial districts on September 17:

#TOMALABOLSA in Madrid, Spain (Confirmed)

#OCCUPYFDSF in San Francisco, USA (Confirmed)

#OCCUPYBAYSTREET in Toronto, Canada

#OCCUPYCANARYWHARF in London, UK

#OCCUPYMARTINPLACE in Sydney, Australia

#OCCUPYBANKENVIERTEL in Frankfurt, Germany

#OCCUPYMARUNOUCHI in Tokyo, Japan

But if a group of enraged activists — endorsed by the likes of Stephen Lerner — occupying Wall Street with tent cities were not enough — it actually gets worse. The term “Day of Rage” finds origin in “Days of Rage,” a violent set of riots waged in Chicago in 1969 by the Weathermen’s Bill Ayers and Bernadine Dohrn. The Weather Underground terrorist organized his “Rage” in an attempt to bring troops back home from Vietnam. Similarly, this most recent US Day of Rage is co-organized by a group that calls itself “The War Resistance League.”

Yet despite Ayers’ initial claim that his Day of Rage, too, would be “non-violent,” during the four day rampage that started in Chicago’s historic Lincoln Park, the Weathermen arrived in full-clad battle gear, helmets and weapons in tow, and called on activists to kill the rich and even their own parents.

During an interview with Chicago Mag, Ayers, with no regrets, summed up his riot’s intended purpose, stating, “kill all the rich people. Break up their cars and apartments. Bring the revolution home, kill your parents—that’s where it’s really at.

Ayers went on to explain away his Day of Rage, saying, “the rhetoric was excessive because the times were excessive.”

“The war had escalated, so naturally the language escalated. No one thought I meant that literally.” But as it turns out, Ayers did.

As the Weathermen marched on, smashing windows and vandalizing property through the tear-gassed streets of Chicago, nearly 300 militants were arrested and over 60 people were injured. Some reports estimate the damage climbed to hundreds of thousands of dollars, which, four decades ago, was a steep price indeed.

But, never breaking with character, the remorseless Ayers trivialized the destruction, stating that "the Days of Rage was an attempt to break from the norms of kind of acceptable theatre of 'here are the anti-war people: containable, marginal, predictable, and here's the little path they're going to march down, and here's where they can make their little statement.' We wanted to say, "No, what we're going to do is whatever we had to do to stop the violence in Vietnam.""

Similarly, two of the activists from the new Day of Rage revealed similar intentions when they explained that physically "putting your body in the way" of an injustice is more effective than traditional means of non-violent protests.

But to Ayer's delight, his Days of Rage ended with his band of radical protesters marauding the streets of Chicago causing complete destruction.

"The streets became sparkling and treacherous with the jagged remains of our rampage," a nostalgic Ayers wrote about his window-smashing "crystal chaos."

Meanwhile, the broader US Day of Rage movement, that also operates under the moniker, "Occupy Wall Street," states it is an "idea not a party" and lists its basic tenets and principles on the official website.

So now we will have to wait and see what becomes of the latest Days of Rage incarnation. We are, however, given a little insight into the thinking some organizers of the US Day of Rage via several informational videos posted on Rage's website.

The "how to" videos and "handbook" on civil disobedience provided by the movement's organizers do include instruction on how to resist arrest and disrupt court hearings. Not a hopeful sign they intend to remain on the "civil" side of disobedience.

In the video, one of the organizers even likens his movement to Gandhi's. We wonder what Gandhi would say about the use of the word "rage" at all, let alone if the protests turn out the same, violent way the Weathermen's did. Will these new radicals, lead by SEIU's Stephen Lerner, rampage through the streets of New York, vandalizing property, injuring people and wreaking havoc until the tear gas is deployed? We shudder to think.

Dear Governor Mary Fallin-

As a small business owner (second generation family-owned business) and a resident of Oklahoma, I applaud your stand on the impending health care reform and Medicaid. I believe as you that the proposal will either require the State of Oklahoma to spend funds to simply comply with the proposed regulations, or force us into reliance on federal funds (which, with the deficit, are completely nonexistent).

My company's health care cost has increase to the point that our best option for health insurance for our employees is now $1300 a month for family coverage, when we are employing most of our semi-skilled workers at $12-$18 an hour. We pay 80% of the employee's premium, and 50% of their dependents premium. At this point, the $2000 fine per employee for not providing health insurance for our employees is a gift that would allow us to hire additional workers. We currently have 22 employees.

The final or latest version of 'Obamacare', intended to provide insurance for every American, has skyrocketed my costs, will directly negatively impact the unemployment rate across our state and country and ultimately will leave Oklahomans without health care.

Your decision is consistant with the belief of the majority of Oklahomans, including myself and my management staff. We wish you well in the coming months as you take our fight to the front line.

Best regards,

Governor Fallin,
Thank you for standing strong against the Federal Government's attempted health-care takeover and for refusing to setup an 'Obamacare exchange' in our Great State. In the history of our great Union there has never been a broader attempt to limit our God given rights such as with that of the current administration. Please continue to fight the good fight to preserve our individual freedom(s) & liberties.

Leadership such as yours is what is needed most at the present time and is unfortunately lacking by many other fellow Republicans in Office. You're continuously in our thoughts & prayers as is our Great State and the United States as a whole. Keep up the fight!

I applaud your decision not to impliment Obamacare and your decision to seek state-based solutions.

May this resident of California make a suggestion? Build a medical school or two in Oklahoma, subsidize the tuition, and require graduates to remain in Oklahoma to practice medicine for at least ten years. More doctors means more competition, and competition lowers costs. This is a good way forward, and the country needs to see a state successfully pull it off.

The New York Times: Tea Party Aims to Apply Its Touch to the Senate G.O.P.

By Jennifer Steinhauer

The Tea Party is very much alive in the drive for Republican control of the Senate, portending a potential shake-up in the mind-set of the chamber. The easy Republican primary victory in Texas on Tuesday of Ted Cruz, the 41-year-old Sarah Palin-blessed upstart, virtually assured the latest Tea Party candidate a seat in the chamber next year. And he will not be alone when it comes to those backed by the movement, which propelled Republicans to control of the House in 2010.
